REGISTRY RULES AND REGULATIONS

The law as passed is very liberal in its provisions, leaving the matter of registration and license entirely to the option of the owners, but making provision for the legal and easy collection of service fees for those availing themselves of the privilege of registration and license.

It also provides that no stallion or jack may be advertised, either directly or indirectly, as sound until such animal has been examined by a representative of the Registry Board and a certificate of soundness issued. It is not necessary, however, to have a certificate of soundness in order to secure a license or to stand for public service.

No stallion or jack will be given a certificate of soundness if any of the following physical defects or diseases are present:

Moon blindness (periodic ophthalmia), Cataract, Roaring or Whistling, Heaves or Broken Wind, St. Vitus Dance, String Halt, Bone Spavin, Ring Bone, Side Bone, Navicular Disease, Thoroughpin, Box Spavin, Curb with Curbqy Formation of Hocks, Glanders, Farcy, Urethral Gleet, Mange, and retention of one or both testicles (cryptorchid).

Certificates of soundness that may have been issued will be revoked whenever any of the above diseases or defects are detected at later examinations.

The registration and license fee is $2.00 for each animal registered. A renewal of the license, if applied for before March 1 of the following year, may be secured for $1.00.

Stallion owners wishing to have a certificate of soundness for their horses, should make application for the same to the Board, and whenever possible such examination will be made, the maximum fee for which will not exceed $2.00 for any one horse.

Blank forms of application for stallion and jack license must be filed, giving necessary information before license can be issued. These blanks can be secured from the Livestock Registry Board, Stillwater, or from the county clerk of each county upon request.

A purebred license can be issued only when the stallion or jack has been recorded in the stud book of one of the associations listed below as being recognized by the Registry Board. The application for a purebred license must be accompanied in every case by either the certificate of registration, commonly called the pedigree, or a certified copy of the same, before a license can be issued.

A grade license can be issued to a stallion that is not purely bred and registered only when the name and pedigree number of the sire or the dam is given on the application blank. The sire's pedigree must be recorded in a recognized association stud book.

Two forms of license only are issued for jacks; one for purebred or registered, and the other for scrub or non-registered jacks.

Under the provisions of the law certain registry companies that make a practice of issuing certificates of registry or pedigrees for grade horses shall not be recognized by the Board in the issuance of purebred licenses or certificates.

GLADYS IN ANOTHER ROLE—HELPING HER MOTHER

REGISTRATION WORK IN 1918

This years report of the Oklahoma State Livestock Registry Board has been somewhat enlarged to include information which should be of vital importance to every one interested in improving the horse and mule stock of this State. It is our aim to touch upon the more timely subjects besides publishing a list of the licensed stallions and jacks in the State. Every horseman should preserve these copies for reference purposes.

The year 1918 has been very satisfactory from every standpoint regarding the enrolment of stallions and jacks. Stallion and jack owners during 1918 secured their licenses and renewals earlier than ever before. However, there are a few which have a tendency to delay the matter until late in the season. The Board appreciates the fact that applications have been sent in early, and it is hoped that they will continue to come in this way as it helps materially to facilitate the work. Of the 1,380 stallions that have been reported to the Board during 1918, 656 have been purebreds, 283 grades, 441 scrubs. There has been an increase of seven purebred stallions over the year 1917. During the year 1918 there was a decrease of 66 grade stallions and a decrease of 75 scrub stallions. There has been a marked increase in the number of jacks that have been licensed during the year 1918. One thousand two hundred and fourteen licenses were issued to jacks, 682 being purebreds, 532 scrubs. There were 108 more purebred jacks licensed during 1918 than in the year 1917, scrub jacks decreased 19. If the increase in purebred stallions and jacks continues, the scrubs and grades continue to decrease, it will work a decided change on the horse and mule stock of the State.

Conditions in Oklahoma are undoubtedly adapted to the raising of horses and mules. There is no good reason why Oklahoma farmers should not practice raising many more horses and mules, and very much better than they have been doing. The conditions of our soil and climate, and the feed and horse markets within the State all justify this statement. On the farm there is exceptional need for more horses on account of more intensive methods of farming rather than extensive methods on account of the need of cheap power, and on account of the fact that there is no machine quite so well adapted for furnishing draft power on the great American farm as the draft horse. At no time has there been such a splendid opportunity for the horsemen to show their preference for sound, purebred sires. With horses selling cheap as they have been for the past year, there is one lesson that should be taken, and that is that it is the horse with sound feet and legs, good action and a good type that brings the desirable price. We believe, therefore, that horse breeders will be justified and safe in retaining high-class, purebred stallions, and every suitable mare should be bred, and every foal and grown colt be well developed by good care and feeding. It seems to me it would also be a good policy to materially increase the number of purebred mares that our needed purebred sires may be produced at home, also as quickly as possible we should try to eliminate the 283 grade stallions, the 441 scrub stallions, and the 532 scrub jacks.

Renewals

Stallion and jack owners are urged to bear in mind the fact that the life of a license is but for one year, and the date of the expiration is given on each license.

Draft Horse Men Should Organize

A meeting of all men interested in better horses and mules has been called for the last week in August, during the Annual Farm Congress. All those interested should be present in order to effect a state horse- breeders association.

HEREDITARY UNSOUNDNESS IN HORSES

BY PROFESSOR C. W. McCAMPBELL, Manhattan, Kansas

Profit in horse- raising depends primarily upon two factors—type and soundness. Considerable attention has been given the profitable type of horses, but the problem of eradicating hereditary or transmissible unsoundness has been overlooked or neglected when they are due primarily to an inherited weakness of the part involved. This weakness may be in the form of one or all of the following conditions: Defective conformation, poor quality of tissue, or insufficient quantity of tissue of the part involved. These weaknesses are physical characteristics, and as such are transmitted to the offspring. When such offspring reach maturity and are required to do the ordinary work that a horse free from these weaknesses should do without any disturbances of functions or structure of a part, then the evidences of these weaknesses begin to appear, some as loss of function, others in the form of inflammation or enlargements. Hence it is not so much the inheritance of the disease or unsoundness itself that is to be feared, but rather the predisposition due to an inherited poor conformation or poor quality of tissue. A successful breeder offers the following suggestions: "If farmers and breeders would not patronize crooked-legged stallions and crooked-legged mares, in time these defects would be overcome and eradicated, and I know from actual experience that crooked-legged horses will produce crooked-legged horses, and crooked legs develop curbs."

This practical interpretation of the question indicates that sidebones occur so frequently because poor feet, both as to quality and conformation, are so prevalent. Furthermore, the frequency of occurrence of "tied in", poorly shaped, meaty and soft hocks, explains why bone spavins and boggy hocks are so widespread. This suggests two groups of causes: External and internal. The external or immediate cause is usually the wear and tear of work-a-day life, but the internal or primary cause is the inherited weakness which may have been passed down for several generations.

In seeking for size, quality, speed and other desirable qualities, several weaknesses have been allowed to creep in, and by overlooking them for so many generations these weaknesses have been intensified. Hence it is absolutely necessary to discriminate severely against the nusound sire, even though he be a very good individual in every other respect.

It is often questioned whether hereditary unsoundnesses lessen the market value of a horse materially. However, each of the unsoundnesses generally accepted as hereditary depreciate the market value of a horse from 25% to 75%, depending upon the stage of development of that particular unsoundness at the time of sale. Unsound horses showing no lameness and ordinarily passed as sound by the average man are subjected to approximately the following cuts, as estimated by a member of the Chicago horse market operators:

Sidebone	$25.00
Ringbone	50.00
Small bone spavin	20.00
Small curb	15.00
Large curb	30.00
Thoropin	10.00-25.00
Bob spavin	5.00-30.00
Cock ankle	50.00-75.00

When a horse reaches the market, his value is based upon the service he can render, and this value is measured in dollars and cents, not sentiment.

The farmers—the men who usually own from one to eight mares—are the men who produce practically 90% of all the horses of this country. These men watch carefully the cattle market, the hog market, and other farm product markets, but very few keep a close watch upon horse market conditions. Few farmer-horsemen are familiar with the various guarantees that go with horses sold on the market, and fewer still realize the fact that these various guarantees are based very largely upon the question of soundness. Furthermore, 75% to 90% of the unsound horses which find their way to the market are hereditarily unsound. It behooves every horse owner to keep in closer touch with the horse markets and the general situation of the horse business if he hopes to secure the greatest profits.

Every horse-raiser should visit one of the larger horse markets at least once each year. By so doing he will get a broader understanding of the horse business; he will realize more fully that there is a demand for certain classes of horses, while for others there is no particular demand, and he will learn to appreciate more fully the value of soundness. Recently on one of the largest horse markets, a big, smooth gelding, guaranted to be "serviceably sound", sold in less than one minute for $310.00. A few minutes later another big, young gelding, at first sight apparently just as good in every respect as the one just mentioned, but offered under the guarantee, "wind and work", sold for $127.50. The second gelding sold so cheaply because he had a bone spavin (jack) on one hind leg. This bony enlargement, which is often overlooked or excused as only a "bump", made this big, smooth young gelding sell for less than half what he would have brought had he been sound. Furthermore, soundness is as necessary in light horses as in heavy horses. A smooth, toppy four-year-old road mare, with a ringbone, sold for $40.00, while a five-year-old, just as smooth and toppy, with a bone spavin sold for $47.50. The pair brought $87.50 simply because they were unsound, while a brown gelding, not as attractive as either of the mares mentioned, but sound, sold a few minutes later for $140.00.

Hereditary or transmissible unsoundnesses are big factors in lessening the profits of horse breeders. Hundreds of thousands of dollars are lost each year simply through lack of attention and neglect of this problem. If the mare-owner will appreciate the value of soundness in the brood mare and will persistently and resolutely refuse to use the hereditarily unsound mare, as well as the hereditarily unsound stallion, for breeding purposes, wonderful results may be obtained in a very short time in eradicating unsoundnesses.

The following unsoundnesses are classed as hereditary:

1. Sidebone
2. Bone spavin
3. Ringbone
4. Bog spavin
5. Thoroughpin
6. Curb with crooked hocks
7. Roaring (laryngeal hemiplegia)
8. Defects of vision—
    a Cataract
    b Amaurosis
    c Periodic ophthalmia
9. String halt
10. Heaves (pulmonary emphysema)
11. Ridgling (cryptorchidism)
12. Rheumatism
13. Melanotic tumors.

If the horse producer will but give the care, attention and intelligent study demanded, there is no class of livestock that will return such certain profits as horses of the right kind. The very first requisite of the right kind of a horse is soundness. Such horses can be produced only from sires and dams free from hereditary unsoundness or an inherent predisposition to them. The successful breeder divests himself of all sentiment, and appreciates all defects which predispose to unsoundness in both sire and dam.

THE FUTURE OF THE DRAFT HORSE

BY WAYNE DINSMORE

The Situation Now Before Us

In considering the future of any industry it is necessary to consider the past and the present.

For forty years past heavy draft horses of approved type have always been salable at prices which left a fair profit when the work they rendered on the farm was taken into consideration. Even in the 90's, when all values were at a low ebb, this was true, for the feed needed to produce horses was absurdly low in price. Draft horses have been the easiest for the farmer to produce, have rendered the greatest service during their period of growth, and have enjoyed the widest and most stable market of any class of horses ever produced.

During the four years of war recently ended, draft horses have brought the highest prices, both here and abroad, and have been most readily sold. Today they are bringing more money than any other class of horses, and can always be sold at some price. The only complaint heard is that they do not bring as high a price proportionately as other products of the farm. This is true, but it has also been true in the future of other things than horses. Lack of ship space has been the chief contributing factor, for when horses were worth from two to three times as much in Europe as here we could not export them because all available space was needed for munitions of war (including horses) and men and provisions. We were in much the same situation as the wheat-growers of Australia, who, with milions of bushels of grain in their granaries and a world clamoring to be fed, could not transport it to the nations crying for food, because ship bottoms were more urgently needed elsewhere. Today the same condition retards our trade, for provisions must go first to the European nations that have had less than a normal allowance of foods necessary to life. Construction work in this country has not had time to start, farm work is at the lowest point of the year, and feedstuffs are high. The net result is that every one with surplus horses wants to sell, trade is stagnant, and prices are from 25% to 40% below true values, measured by the world's need for horses and mules. Such is the present situation—yet even today at any well-advertised farm sale, big, sound draft horses ready for work will bring good cash prices; not as much as they should, in proportion to other classes of livestock, but, nevertheless, prices that will leave a profit when the cost of feed they consumed is reduced by a fair allowance for the work they have done on the farm.

Future Problems

As farmers and horse-breeders, we have four main problems confronting us in the immediate future. These in the order in which I shall discuss them are: Tractor and truck competition, increasing the efficiency of horses as power units, reducing their cost of production and maintenance, and the foreign demand for horses.

Truck and Tractor Competition

The competition of trucks and tractors has had a distinct influence. It has frightened thousands of farmers into a partial, or complete, discontinuance of horse-breeding. Where it inhibited the breeding of mares of 1,200 pounds or over to draft stallions, this has been harmful. Where it stopped the use of small stallions, or the breeding of very small or decidedly inferior mares, it has been a benefit. More good than harm has probably resulted, for we had a vast surplus of horses ranging from 1,000 to 1,400 pounds, and horses as a whole were being produced more rapidly than demand warranted. Especially was this true of the smaller, inferior kinds. A surplus of inferior horses drags down the price on good ones, so that every man who is producing good horses has reason to thank any factor which materially retards the breeding of scrubs, even though the same factor may temporarily depress interest in the production of real drafters.

How far truck and tractor use may limit the field for drafters in the future no one with certainty can foretell. We do know that in the large cities trucks and teams appear to be reaching a balance. Teams are cheaper and more effective in short hauls, trucks superior in tthe long hauls. For a time trucks replaced teams at a very rapid rate in our large cities. Chicago, especially favorable to truck usage, has exact data on this. During the three years ending April 30, 1915, two-horse teams decreased 15%, three-horse teams 30%, and auto trucks one ton or over increased 441%. During the next three years, ending April 30, 1918, two-horse teams decreased 21%, three-horse teams only 8%, and auto trucks over one ton increased only 174%—less than half as rapidly as the preceding period. Furthermore, there was an increase of 2% in the three-horse teams in the last year, and this tallies with the statement of very competent draymen who stated that there had been a tendency on the part of economy. In Greater New York there was during the two years and four months ending March, 1917, a reduction of only 2,100 horses, despite a great increase in trucks. This was a decrease of less than 2%.

The limit of profitable replacement appears to have been reached, or nearly so, and not 30% of the heavy drafters have been displaced. The most experienced city transfer men who have been in the business for twenty years or more declare that teams can never be entirely eliminated in city work by trucks, as the increased cost of handling short-haul traffic would be prohibitive; and these are men who have both trucks and teams in constant service, do draying on a tonnage basis, and are interested in the proposition solely from a financial standpoint.

Tractor competition to draft horses on farms is a newer development, and has not yet reached its limit. The use of tractors will continue to increase up to the limit of profitable replacement, wherever that may be, and the farm power question will then go into a balance between tractors and horses, just as in our cities. The proportion of horses displaced on farms, however, will be much less than in the cities, for there are many factors on the farm which do not exist in the city to retard the use of gas engine power units. Among these the more important are soft ground, lack of skilled mechanics, distance from repairs, and the higher cost of gas, oil and repairs. Horses also cost less, whether reared or bought, and are maintained at a much lower cost, especially as regards shoeing and feed.

Increasing the Efficiency of Draft Horses

From a working standpoint, the horse must be considered simply as an equine motor—self-reproducing, self-repairing and capable of utilizing the feed produced on the farm. The tractor manufacturer seeks to make his machine as efficient as possible by using the best material in its creation. He also seeks to secure the most advantageous line of draft, so as to avoid all needless loads or strains, and tries to eliminate all weak spots which may cause breakdowns or shorten the life of the power unit.

Horemen should apply the same principles to their equine units; in fact, must do so if they are to make progress.

First and foremost we must learn to hitch our horses to various farm implements in such a way as to avoid side draft, which has been a constant drag on our power, especially in plowing. It is impossible to hitch three or four horses abreast on a single bottom plow, or four abreast on a gang-plow with out creating side draft, unless one of the horses works on the plowed ground. This much has been definitely demonstrated in the experiments carried out during the past season by Professor White of the Illinois Experiment Station. The increase in tractiond ue to side draft where four horses were hitched abreast was 25% under the best conditions, and sometimes considerably more.

Without going into details here, I may say that we have, working with the Illinois Experiment Station, evolved a hitch known as the "multiple hitch", which entirely eliminates side draft. The teams in plowing are hitched one in front of the other, and from two to five pairs may be used strung out in tandem just as handily as an ordinary farm horse team. In this hitch, also, we have eliminated the fault of an unsatisfactory angle of trace on the teams removed some distance from the load, which has heretofore been the stumblingblock of those who sought to use their teams strung out in this fashion, and to those tandem hitches we have applied the "tying-in and bucking-back" system, which has been successfully used for the past twenty years on ahe Pacific coast. The general application and use of these improved methods of hitching and driving teams in four- six, eight or ten-horse units will go far toward increasing our drafthorse efficiency to a point where side draft will be wholly eliminated and the work done per week per man employed brought higher than with any three-bottom tractor.

Horsemen must also learn to build better draft horses, that will work with less time off for repairs and last longer than the average horse now endures. The horse that lacks endurance and that "plays out" when in hard work must be eliminated from the reproductive ranks, and the same holds true of those that go lame because of some structural defect. A mare that must be laid off because of lameness or lack of endurance in hard work should be discarded as a breeder, for she has faults that reduce her usefulness, and these will eventually appear in her descendants in more or less degree. The farmer who uses unsound stock or animals that lack endurance and courage when put to to the test is like the manufacturer who deliberately uses inferior materials in an engine. Both are contributing to a product that may break down and be laid out for repairs at an inopportune time. Here, then, we find in tractor competition a lesson which we may all take to heart, for our object, like that of the manufacturer, is to produce a power unit that will require no time off for repairs and that will give long life and steady service under all conditions. In this particular the Percheron breed has an enviable record, due undoubtedly to the fact that it has been the common practice, both in France and America, to work the mares. Farmers in both countries have, without realizing it, discriminated against mares that went lame, or were unsound, or that were ill-tempered, or that lacked endurance. The mare that is always ready for work, and that steps freely into the collar at the end of a hard day's work, is a safe one to keep; and if her colts are of such conformation and size as to sell readily, hold fast to such a matron and her daughters, for they will make you rich. This is the surest and shortest road to increasing the efficiency of our equine motors.

Reducing the Cost of Production

The watchword in every factory is, "reduce the cost of production without lessening the quality of the article". In this we, as farmers and horsemen, have much to learn from manufacturers. A factory in which one-half the lathes stood idle would soon face bankruptcy; yet there are many farms where at least one-half the mares are barren each year, not because they will not breed, but because the owner was too careless or indolent to put them into good breeding condition and to make sure that they conceived. The first step in reducing the cost of production on an individual farm is, therefore, to see that every mare of breeding age brings forth a colt each year.

The next step in the factory is to bring the rough product first turned out from forge or foundry through to a marketable point without loss. A factory that broke half its engine castings while they were being machined and finished would soon be ruined; yet on thousands of farms from one-third to one-half the colts that are foaled are lost from naval ill or some other avoidable ailments before reaching maturity. Our second step in reducing the cost of production is therefore to take every human precaution against the loss of colts between birth and maturity. Some loss will inevitably be encountered, for disease sometimes comes in both man and beast that defies all precautions our knowledge can suggest; but the reduction of costs makes it imperative for us, as farmers and horsemen, to learn all we can about preventing these ailments, which take such a toll at times from our colts.

The third step in cutting costs is found in the feed problem. This may be linked to the labor problem of the factory. Inefficient labor, or labor improperly coordinated, increases factory costs; and poor feeds, or a faulty combination of good feedstuffs, increases the cost of production in our horses.

First and foremost in reducing cost of production, I would put good pastures. Professor J. L. Edmonds of the Illinois Experiment Station has a group of pastures that have for the past two years carried an average of one horse per acre the year round. This has reduced the cost of production both by lessening the acreage needed and by reducing the labor required to feed and care for the growing colts. He has built these pastures within ten years from a rough corn field to a point where they cannot be excelled in America; and what he has done any farmer can do, for he has used only common sense, close attention, and fertilizers available to any one.

Second only to pasturage I place the use of roughage in an intelligent way. Our Experiment Stations have many sins to answer for, but in no one thing have they been more guilty of sins of omission than in studies relating to the best use of economical roughages for growing or maintaining horses. This question, with that of grains, should receive exhaustive study from our Experiment Stations. Only one or two are now at work on these questions, and few have contributed anything of consequence on horse-feeding. Horsemen must write to their Experiment Stations and insist on some worth-while work on these subjects.

In the meantime we must go to the experience of some of our best horse-raisers for light. These men are using a variety of roughage—such as corn fodder in the morning, oat straw at noon, and alfalfa or bright clover hay at night. All roughages used must be free from dust. So far as grains are concerned, there is nothing better than oats, but a combination of grains may often give cheaper production cost without imparing the rate of growth or quality of animal produced. It is here, however, that we need some comprehensive experimental work involving large groups of animals, carried through from birth to maturity, for the specific purpose of ascertaining what grain combinations can be used with cheap roughage without retarding normal growth. I urge you to impress upon your own Experiment Station the importance of this work, for several years' tests must be ended before any definite conclusions can be drawn. These tests should by all means involve combinations of grains which can be grown on every farm so, that, if possible, rations can be evolved independently of purchased products.

Foreign Demand

This is a problem which no man can as yet measure. It was anticipated that there would be an immediate and large demand for our horses in England and France; but letters which I have recently received from men in Great Britain who are especially well qualified to speak with authority, indicate that there will be no immediate demand for our commercial horses there. In the first place, they are so short on horse forage that ration cards have been issued, and the amount each horse can have is doled out with even greater care than sugar was to human beings. In the second place, the British Government is now selling 125,000 horses from the army in Great Britain, and will, it is estimated, sell half a million more within the next eight months. The London Times on December 11, 1918, quotes Sir Wm. Birkbeck, Director General of Remounts, as having estimated in a speech made December 10, 1918, that the number of horses eventually to be released from the British armies would be not less than three-quarters of a million. General Birkbeck also proved by the exact records of the army that the percentage of wastage among army horses, even allowing for war losses, was considerably less than that experienced by ordinary commercial firms in Great Britain before the war. Brood mares released from the army are to be sold to British farmers, but the Government retains a lien on the progeny up to three and one-half years of age at $250.00 per head.

The number France will demobilize is estimated at nearly three-quarters of a million, and the United States Government had at the time the armistice was signed 166,554 horses and mules in Europe, all of which will be sold there within the next two or three years. This means that there will be approximately 1,500,000 horses released from the allied armies for other uses in the next year or two; and such a demobilization will forestall any extensive exportations and rapidly reduce values from the higher levels prevailing in Europe to figures more nearly approximating prices here. There is, however, definite evidence in my possession which forecasts the inauguration of some shipments of heavy drafters from the United States to Europe as soon as cargo space is available at reasonable rates, and there is also certainty of some exportations of Percherons from the United States to Great Britain, as three separate British concersn are already at work on preliminary plans for Percheron purchases in this country. These will be very strictly safeguarded by the British Percheron interests, which have already given notice that they will not allow any shipments unless the animals are inspected and passed before leaving the United States by their representatives. Knowing as we do the harm which came to American horse interests by the importation from France and sale here of many inferior Percheron stallions, we can but applaud the good judgment our British cousins are displaying in taking steps to check the activities of irresponsible speculators who might seek to engage in the trade. The demand for Percherons in England will grow, slowly but surely, as they acquaint themselves with the merits of the breed; and there is reason to believe that the trade will eventually be almost as important as our sales to Canada, which totaled 770 Percherons during our last fiscal year.

Despite the conditions I have already discussed, which will delay the establishment of a large trade in the exportation of horses, there is bound to be a great volume of business in exporting horses within the next five years. Even New York financial journals have taken note of this, for The Wall Street Journal recently said: "Nothing on the American farm will be in greater demand abroad than the horse."

All this must favorably affect the future of the draft horse here.

Economic Phase of the Problem

When all is said and done, horsemen must realize that the horse will survive as a power unit so long as equine power can be furnished more cheaply, more efficiently and more satisfactorily than in some other form. Horses today furnish the greatest proportion of the power needed in producing crops, and there is no reason to believe that the supremacy of good draft horses on farms ever will be threatened seriously; but inefficient horses, and their owners, will be slowly but surely eliminated.

The advantage to the farmer of producing his own power units is very great, for then he is independent. Tractor manufacture requires labor in the iron and coal mines, steel mills and tractor factories, and much of this is high-priced labor. Strikes or wage increases may within a very brief time double the cost of power to the farmer who is dependent on the factory, and he is subject to the arbitrary action of manufacturers in the prices he must pay for repairs and the time when he shall receive them. The cost of fuel is also beyond his control. The man who uses draft mares and rears his own power units is free from such problems. He knows that the cost of his power units cannot be suddenly and arbitrarily increased by the action of a manufacturer or labor union. He knows that he has no need to fret about repairs, for if one horse gives out, another can be substituted in thirty minutes or less; and he is raising his own fuel in roughage and grains an dcan tell the Standard Oil Company where to go when the price of internal combustion oils is increased.

We must not forget, also, that, while the horse in ordinary work exerts a pull equal to one-tenth of his weight, he can in an emergency pull a load five or six times as great, while mechaincal power at best can pull only o 100% overload. This reserve of power available in horsepower units is invaluable on the farm or anywhere else when thoroughly dependable power that can work in soft footing is needed.

Furthermore, the waste from his equine power units goes back to the farm as fertilizer instead of being sold to the old junkman at half a cent a pound; and last, but not least, his power units in horseflesh endure much longer than any other field power he can buy.

The good draft horse still reigns supreme on farms, and will continue to do so; but the inefficient horse is doomed.

THE COLLEGE PERCHERON STALLION, DONALD JR. 122304 AT WORK— THERE IS NO BETTER WAY OF EXERCISING THE STALLION

NAVEL INFECTION IN YOUNG COLTS

BY L. L. LEWIS

Navel or joint ill is a very widespread and common trouble of young colts under one month old. The trouble is due to an infection that gains entrance through the navel. The trouble is very widespread and becomes so troublesome in some breeding districts and stables as to constitute a serious menace to breeding operations. The trouble may be seen in either young calves or colts, but is generally much more common in colts.

In nearly all cases the infection takes place after birth, although some colts present symptoms at birth that are too well developed to be explained except by assuming that infection has taken place from the dam. The infection ordinarily takes place within twenty-four hours to forty-eight hours after birth. In nearly all of these cases the navel cord does not appear to dry as readily as it should, or the region of the navel stays wet for several days. Such causes are more likely to develop joint ill than where the navel cord becomes shrivled and dry in a few hours. Bedding soiled by manure or wet, dirty stalls are very likely to be a source of trouble when colts are foaled under such conditions. A stall that has once been used by a colt infected by either navel ill or by dysentery should never be used by another mare and foal until it has been well disinfected. Merely removing bedding and replacing with clean hay or straw is not sufficient to guard against future trouble. The woodwork, floors, etc. should be well washed with a 2% to 5% solution of disinfectant or whitewashed before used by another foal. A sporadic case of navel ill may be so carelessly handled that almost every calf or colt born on the premises may become infected.

Most frequently the first symptoms noticed in colts is an enlargement of one or more joints. This appears within a few days after birth, and is generally attributed to an accident of some kind. The joint is enlarged, hot and painful. Generally the swelling persists until lanced or the skin breaks of its own accord, discharging pus. The articular form is not generally fatal. The swelling frequently persists, resulting in a permanent blemish or enlargement of the joint.

Joint ill frequently takes an acute form. The colt refuses to suck in a day or two, is unable to stand, the body very limp, temperature 104° to 105°, and heartbeat very rapid and weak. Such conditions as these usually lead to a fatal termination in one or two days.

Cleanliness is the best means of prevention. If trouble of this kind has been experienced on the farm, then the greatest care should be taken to see that any stall or enclosure used by mares in foaling should be clean. Disinfectants, such as 2% to 5% solutions of any of the coal tar dips, crude carbolic acid, whitewash thoroughly applied, etc. It is much easier to prevent troubles of this character than it is to treat them.

Treatment is not very successful in most of these cases. When pus has formed in a joint, the skin should be opened and a good disinfectant used to wash out the abscess. Sometimes the administration of a stimulant is necessary. It is advisable in all cases to secure the services of a veterinarian if possible.

THE FOAL CROP OF 1918, SIRE, DONALD JR. 122304—WINNERS OF FIRST PRIZE GET OF SIRE, OKLAHOMA CITY AND

THE TYPE OF HORSE NEEDED IN OKLAHOMA

BY F. A. HEBERLING

My observation and expjerience has been that in order to get the maximum horsepower on Oklahoma farms at the minimum cost, it is necessary to have mares weighing from 1,600 to 2,000 pounds, of the following type:

Sensible head; good, clear, determined eye; rather thin throatlatch for good wind; long enough neck to drink out of the creek or get the head up and look respectable, taking large collar for size of mare; good heart; short back; medium tail height; clean, flat bone; medium pasterns; good feet, and free action.

When I buy a horse I like to go out in the pasture field where they are grazing and chase them into a trot. Then it is easy to see the natural movements, and if they do not move off in a good, free trot, it is well enough to go to some other place to buy.

A great many men have had better success with mules than with horses. They claim a mule will not overdo himself, whereas a good, ambitious horse or mare will, lie a good workman, try to do their employer an honest day's work, which, in hot weather, is sometimes rather hard on the constitution. However, if the digestion is taken care of there will be very little trouble from heat.

I have had some experience with both mules and mares, and it is my opinion that where the driver, be he owner or employe, has as much horse sense as a mule, there will be no ill effects on horses of the right type from a reasonable day's work on any of the hot days which we have in Oklahoma. A great many men think that a mule will stand more heat than a horse. In fairness to their opinions, I will admit that this is a debatable question. However if we were as exacting when we buy horses as we are when we buy mules, most of that argument would be eliminated.

Another thing that is being overlooked is color. Most horsemen in Oklahoma like bay or brown or black. I think that science will bear me out in the statement that gray absorbs less heat than any other color. Even the large oil companies paint their large steel tanks white or gray for the reason that those colors deflect the heat instead of absorbing it, thereby lessening the loss by evaporation. It would be well for us to have more grays and profit by experience that has probably cost millions. Some might say that it is hard to sell a gray. I contend that when people know the worth of a good thing it is easy to sell. Let us lay aside our prejudices and use whatever will give us the best results at the least cost.

Raising colts from mares as described will pay for the initial investment, all the feed, and make a handsome profit besides. That will be giving the farmer his horsepower for nothing,and that beats paying $500.00 per pair for mules or $2,000.00 for a tractor.

STATE AID TO DRAFT HORSE BREEDING

(Paper read by Ellis McFarland, Assistant Secretary, Percheron Society of America, before National Association of Stallion Enrollment Boards.)

The time has come in the purebred draft horse business in America when something must be done, and that at once, if we are to get anywhere in the production of this kind of livestock. The war is over now and we need every possible assistance we can get to put the horse business back on its feet again. Shortly, it will be the draft horse that the world will be seeking most anxiously, for the reconstruction of our agriculture.

The opportunity is here upon up now, and the best method of meeting it is what we want to find out. There is no possible chance of Government aid to draft horse breeding in this country at present, at least, except as the individual States take it up. That means that you men, the secretaries of the different stallion enrollment boards, should take an active part in this work to promote draft horse breeding. There is no other class of men who are in a position to help horse-breeders as much as you are.

I have seen governmental aid to horse-breeding in actual practice in Europe, and know that its benefits are far-reaching. Over in the Perche every horse that is used as a sire must be inspected by Government experts. Only first-class horses can pass this inspection. Then from this class of stallions a certain percentage are chosen and called approved horses. They are the best individuals to be found. With all this precaution taken by the Government to protect its people against patronizing unfit sires, it isn't any wonder that in pre-war times we used to get so many high-class Percheron horses from France. Much the same practices are followed in Belgium. In England and Scotland, clubs are formed and high-class stallions hired for the season to travel trose districts. From Europe this idea was taken to Canada where it is accomplishing unusual results. It is now up to the horse-breeders of the United States to work out a similar scheme whereby stallion owners and mare owners alike can have the help of the State in which they live and pay taxes.

Every State, though, must necessarily work out a bill to present to its lawmakeing representatives that will fit the particular laws of that State. In general, however,, the main principles involved remain the same. An appropriation of at least $100,000.00 should be asked for, half of which should be available for use the first year, and the remainder the second year. There should be an inspection committee consisting of a veterinarian appointed by the stallion enrollment board, a competent judge of the draft horses, appointed by the dean of the State College of Agriculture. He may be, but not necessarily, a member of the college faculty. The third member of this inspection committee shoull be actively engaged in breeding purebred draft horses, and he should also be recognized as a good judge of draft horses. He should be appointed by the Governor of the State.

The compensation of these officers should be taken out of the State treasury, or from the funds accruing from fees collected by the stallion enrollment board, but not from this appropriation of $100,000.00.

The dutics of such a board should be to select first-class stallions, those suitable only for siring good, purebred draft horses, as well as first-rate grade draft horses, the matter of type, conformation and soundness to be left entirely with this inspection committee. No stallion should be accepted unless he is a purebred, duly recorded in a stud book recognized by the state stallion board, and duly licensed by this board. The question of soundness must necessarily depend entirely upon the laws of that particular State, and upon the judgment of this inspection committee.

To get a stallion inspected, the owner should file application with the stallion enrollment board, said application to be accompanied by the pedigree of the horse in question, together with transfer certificates showing that this horse is duly transferred on the records of the association where registered to the name of the party who has made application for State aid. Then there will be no difficulty with breeders getting purebred colts recorded from such a stallion. This application should also be accompanied by the certificate of license for the stallion in question. A fee of $100.00 should be required to be sent in with eevry application, such amount being a guarantee that application for State aid is being made for a horse of merit, one that is reasonably sure of passing this inspection. This money should be forfeited if the horse passes inspection, and $75.00 of that amount returned to the owner in case his horse does not pass inspection.

A town near the center of each county should be selected as an inspecting point. Then a date could be set when all horses to be inspected in that county should be brought to that central point. A tour of the State could be arranged in this manner, and then if a man failed to get his horse inspected on thatdate he should be compelled to wait until the inspection committee found it convenient to see his horse. An appropriate certificate should be issued by the stallion enrolment board on such approved stallions. This inspection would, of course, have to be annual, beginning as soon after January 1 as the commitee deems advisable.

In case of the death of an approved stallion, the owner should have the privilege of substituting another horse, providing he passes inspection by this committee, and providing the stallion meets with the approval of the mare owners that agreed in the beginning to patronize the first horse. The entire proceeding would have to be gone through with again as in the case of the first sire, but the owner should not be prevented from obtaining State aid due to the death of a horse, if the man is willing to purchase another good horse to finish out the season.

The application to have a horse inspected should also be accompanied by an affidavit made by the stallion owner on an appropriate blank furnished by the stallion registration board, giving a list of the parties who have agreed to patronize this stallion for the coming season. This affidavit should tell how many grade mares, together with number of purebreds, if any, each man has pledged to this stallion, which should in no case be a total of less than fifty nor more than seventy-five mares.

A stallion to receive state aid should stand at a service fee of not less than $25.00 nor more than $50.00. Exceptional sires that command a service fee of more than that amount are, of course, few in number, and should be furnished aid by the State only at the rate of a horse that stands at $50.00. The service fee should be specified in the application for inspection of this stallion. Where both grade and pedigree mares are bred to a stallion the amount of State aid given would have to be figured on the basis of so many grade mares in foal and so many purebred mares in foal, using the two service fees, as most stallion owners charge more for a purebred colt. of more than that amount are of course few in number and should be furnished aid by the state only at the rate of a horse that stands at $50. The service fee should be specified in the application for inspection of the stallion. Where both grade and pedigree mares are bred to a stallion the amount of state aid given would have to be figured on the basis of so many grade mares in foal and so many purebred mares in foal, using the two service fees, as most stallion owners charge more for a purebred colt.

Twenty percent of the service fee, whatever that amount may be, should be paid by the mare owner at the time of service. The balance, or 8%, of the service fee, should be paid by the mare owner when his mare is known to be in foal. Then, on January 1st of each year the stallion owner, in order to get his pay from the state, should furnish the stallion board, on appropriate blanks furnished by the board, a sworn affidavit for each mare which he believes to be in foal. This statement should contain the name, age, color and description of the mare, together with the dates when she was bred and retried, and no mare should be considered as being in foal until she had been tried for at least three regular heat periods after being bred. This affidavit should also be signed by the mare owner, and should state that he has paid at time of breeding twenty percent of the service fee, and as evidence of his faith that the mare in question is in foal, he has already paid the balance due, or the remaining eighty percent of the service fee. Any mare not known to be in foal on January 1 can be carried over until they are known to be in foal, and the facts reported to the stallion board.

Upon receipt of these statements the state should pay the stallion owner an amount equal to forty percent of the service fee on each mare believed to be in foal. The object, it is understood, in having the mare owner pay down twenty percent of the service fee in the begining is to assure the stallion owner that he will have a chance to try this mare regularly after she is bred. If her owner has some money invested toward this colt he will try a good deal harder to get something for his money. If he must pay eighty percent of the service fee when the mare is known to be in foal, he will exert every effort to raise the colt. The stallion owner will do his best to get every mare in foal possible, for every service fee he collects on mares known to be in foal he can get from the State 40% of the service fee at which he stands the stallion.

The bill for an appropriation of $100,000 for aid in draft horse breeding should provide financial assistance for not to exceed 100 stallions per year, and for no more than fifty mares in foal per stallion annually, and not less than forty. Such restrictions would assure the selection by this inspection committee of only the choicest sires. Furthermore, a maximum of fifty mares in foal per stallion would prevent the excessive use of these approved stallions, and the minimum number would prevent State aid from going to a horse that was not sure.

The greatest good that can be done now to the horsemen of America is to encourage them to produce only high-class drafters. We have far too many of the ordinary kind of purebred draft horses, and an oversupply of acommon work horses, but the first-rate sort of purebreds, as well as grades, are mighty hard to find. That is the only kind that has brought a reasonable price during these dull times, and it will be the only kind that will pay the farmers of this country to raise in the future. Any movement, legislative or otherwise, that aids this cause in the interest of better draft horses is a great contribution to the agricultural advancement of our country.

THE BEGINNER IN RAISING DRAFT HORSES

BY W. L. BLIZZARD

A clearly defined plan of what is desired to accomplish should first be made. It is advisable to have good knowledge of horse-breeding. To accomplish this, all the information that it is possible to find shoud be studied. Many times large breeding establishments are handy. These can be visited and their plans, etc., can be studied. It is indeed surprising as to how much information there is available on the subject. All of this preparation, and more is desirable, even if but a few colts are to be raised each year.

It is a well established fact at this time that from now on nothing but superior horses will sell at remunerative prices. There is always some demand for the inferior, misfit, but in spite of all that can be done, too many of these will be produced each year.

Care should always be taken to select the breed which best suits the farm, the local markets and especially the kind you like. Farms devoted largely to grain-raising and stock-raising, unless the land is very light, call for heavy horses. Here the draft horse finds his true place, while he is growing and reaching maturity. Mature horses are usually found in the city, and the young horses on the farm.

The following classes of farmers can well afford to raise a few draft horses each year:

1. The farmer more or less engaged in mixed grain farming.
2. Some of the dairymen could well afford to part with a few poor cows and invest in a couple of good brood mares.
3. The fruit and truck farmer can well afford to have a span of horses to sell each year.

Brood mares should be kept on the farms to a much greater extent than they are now; fewer mares should go to the city. The breeding and rearing of horses by farmers can be made profitable. It is only in the past few years that the farmer and the farm boy have had an opportunity to become familiar with the science of raising good horses. It is wondeful that the horses are as good as they are at this time. On the other hand, there is still room for improvement in the draft horse. The improvement of the horse as we find him today has been brought about by—

1. Good blood and individuality.
2. Correct feeding.
3. The proper care and management.

These three principal causes should be kept well in mind by the beginner.

The beginner should have the right kind of mares; mares with size, type, substance, bone, feet, pasterns, body and action, etc. Before using a stallion, the mare owner should know something about his colts, his individuality and his ancestry. He should be by all means a purebred.

The brood mare needs proper feeding because she has a three-fold duty to perform, namely: (a) To supply food for her own body; (b) milk for suckling colt; (c) nutriment for the future colt. For these reasons good judgment and plenty of common sense are necessary in order to supply the mare the correct nourishment. Bran and oats make a good combination for the brood mare. The mare should not be fed dusty or moldy hay. She should have a liberal allowance of bright, clean hay, together with clear, fresh water. Green, succulent pasture is always desirable.

The brood mare previous to foaling time will require a little extra care in her handling; she should not be overworked. Backing and pulling heavy loads is a bad practice.

Regularity of feeding is always advisible; too much emphasis cannot be placed on this part of it. The mare may need watching as she nears foaling time. Many a colt has died because no one was on the job to give assistance at this time.

Good horses are still in demand, and the future is especially good. Many a farmer is overlooking an opportunity in this matter of keeping a few mares on the farm.

FOOD FOR THOUGHT

"Stallion enrollment sounds the death knell of the scrub, puts a premium on the purebred and disqualifies the grade."

"I have never yet seen a good reproductive sire that had a common eye."—Edmond Perriot.

"Substance, that is where the draft horse shines. He has got the "guts", in other words, and he has used those guts on the battlefields of France."

"Before settling for the stallion, see his certificate of registration and try his wind. Buy of a responsible breeder or dealer—one who can and will treat you right if anything goes wrong."—W. E. Pritchard.

"Now, in order to become a successful producer of purebred animals, the very first essential, next to having a real liking for the business, is to make a thorough study of the blood lines and combinations that have been most successful in the past."—Alex Galbraith.

"In the future no one can afford to raise an inferior or common horse for his day is done, but the breeder who continues to raise big, rugged, sound draft horses, with style, quality and action, has a right to feel optimistic over the future, for there is both pleasure and profit in raising the good ones."—Dr. C. W. McCampbell.

"Stallion enrollment has brought a large measure oof protection to the stallion owner. In the elimination of registry certificates from worthless record associations it has earned its full cost."—H. E. McCartney.

"The colt shows have emphasized the importance of size, for the judges give preference to the larger colts, just as buyers do; in fact, when judges ask what standard should be followed in making a decision between closely matched colts, we tell them to hang their ribbons just as they would spend their money in buying for themselves."—E. T. Robbins.

"Brood mares should be selected with due reference to size and soundness. They should be of feminine type and of the largest size to be found, short in the back, but long below, and of good substance."—W. S. Dunham.

"In choosing a stallion, one must remember that the sire is half the stud, and that his selection is most important."
